Ripans Tabules.

"Out of sympathy for other poor mor tals who may be suffering," says Miss Mary Foeman of Saranac, Clinton county, N. Y., October 21, 1895, "I wish to give my experience with the Ripans Tabules. Having suffered severely for a long time from liver complaint, indigestion, constipation, sick headache and distress in the stomach, and finding no relief in my efforts to regain my health, I was induced by a friend to try Ripans Tabules. Under this cure I improved very much, and in three weeks was cured. I feel like a new person, and my terrible sufferings have all gone. Life is a comfort compared to the misery it used to be. I can now go to bed and have a good night's rest, and car eat heartily without any distress. I am willing this should be published tor others' good, and a thousand thanks for your treatment. MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED.

Anti-American Demonstrations in Spain More Serious. The actions of the mob element in Val encia, Spain, yesterday, became so threatening that martial law was proclaimed in that city last nig it. A crowd numbering fully ten thousand persons met outside the bull ring and attempted to enter that place for the purpose of holding a meeting to express anti-Amer-

Pere Marquette. To the Editor of The Evening Star:

A few words about Marquette and his dis coveries, drawn principally from Catholic sources, may not be uninteresting at the present moment. Jacques Marquette was born in Laon, France, in 1637. At the age of seventeen he entered the Society of Jesus, and fourteen years later was or dained priest, and set out at once for Quebec. After three years spent at Three rivers studying the Algonquin and Huron languages he went with a party of Nez Perces to Lake Superior in 1668. When Joliet was commissioned by Frontenac, at the command of M. Talon, minister of Louis XIV, to "send a discoverer to find the South sea," Pere Marquette, who had then given years of untiring devotion to the starving and defeated Hurons, went with him. With five men he and Joliet made a yoyage in two cances of 2,549 miles, includvoyage in two dances of the Mississippi, over the great waters of the Mississippi, Joliet's boat was overturned and his papers lost, so that the records of the venerable priest and devoted missionary alone remain to tell of that most perilous voyage. out with his pious and unceasing labors as a missionary to the Indians and by the hardships of this "hazardous but not fool-hardy expedition," as he himself called it, he died, says Parkman, near the Sleeping he died, says Parkman, near the Sleeping Bear river in 1673, a hundred years before the Declaration of Independence. In 1781 George Rogers Clark attacked Detroit and was repulsed. The cession of Illinois and the northwest by Virginia was not made until 1784, consequently the United States did not control in 1673 either the state of Wisconsin or the Mississipping attack. of Wisconsin or the Mississippi river. The discoveries of Marquette benefited the French king, Louis XIV, not our republic. He was in no sense of the word "a citizen of Wisconsin, illustrious for distinguished civic or military services," as the law call:

The question is not one of faith or atire, but of fact. Why should not such statues adorn the new library? There venerated and learned nen like Marquette and Ellot, apostle of the Indians, and Penn, and great explorers like Clark and Kane, great inventors like Morse and Edison, might and should be fitly commemorated.

Hearing on the Proposed Homeopathic College.

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONERS

Replying to the Report of Health Officer Woodward.

OTHER DISTRICT AFFAIRS

The postponed hearing on the bill to grant a charter to the Washington Homeopathic Medical College of the District of Columbia took place before the Comsioners this morning. Contrary to expectations the hearing was quite orderly, in marked contrast to the previous one. President Z. Richards of the proposed college was the first speaker. Drs. Frank H. Williams of the medical faculty and Chas. T. Lindsay of the dental faculty presented a statement in reply to the report of the health officer advising against the bill.

"We do not ask for this charter," this statement said, "as a condemnation of what we have done, or as a condemnation of what was done by our predecessor, but as a measure of protection to and an aid in our future usefulness and as a guarply with its requirements. There is no homeopathic college in the District, while there are at least four old school colleges." While, they said, it was possible that the objections of the health officer, offered to this bill, might have applied to their predecessor, the National, they could not admit that they applied even in part, to the Washington Homeopathic Medical College. "As for the reason for changing the ame," the statement went on, "the per somel of the board of trustees and of the faculty of the National Homeopathic Medical College has been completely changed with the exception of three men, and as there was some antipathy toward the college on the part of a number of physicians, members of the Washington Homeopathic Medical Society, justly, they supposed, and because there is in this city a national university, having medical and dental departments, with which we were frequently confounded, we deemed it best, in order to e distinctive and to avoid the odium to change the name entirely as we had charged the personnel and thereby make a new corporation and obtain a congressional charter, which act members of the and dental societies advised would be the first and greatest step toward securing recognition. We believe that every educational institution in the District should have a congressional charter. "We do not fear the provisions of the pending bill for the supervision of medical colleges by your honorable body and would be pleased to have you visit us now or at any time. You will not find a thoroughly equipped medical college, it takes time to do that. No college of any kind was fully equipped in the beginning. There are only two such in the United States, the University of Pennsylvania and Columbian Col-lege of New York, but you will find us as well equipped as any medical college in the country as old or even much older. We have dissecting rooms, chemical, histological and pathological laboratories, stere scopes, for exhibitions, charts and mod els, microscopes, etc., sufficient for teach ing all the branches of medicine, surgery and dentistry. Our college is being con-ducted in an honest and honorable man-ner, not in the least under the control of those who in former years governed the National. When such men as constitute our board of trustees lend their names to any institution, that alone should be a sufficient guarantee and convincing proof that that inscitution would be honestly and honorably conducted. Our object is to teach medicine, surgery and dentistry in all their branches thoroughly and allow none of our students to graduate unless he or she is thoroughly qualified to practice medi-cine or dentistry."

We have not yet established a reputation, for that also takes time, but we would be very materially aided in establishing our reputation and in our work by having a ongressional charter, for we have assur ances from members of the Washington Homeopathic Medical Society and from members of the Dental Society of their support when such a charter is obtained.

The first objection to the bill, "that there is not a representative homeopathic physician among the incorporators," we cannot admit, for all those men who teach branches where medicine is used are homeopathic that there is not a dmit, and the second properties that the second properties are the second properties and the second properties are the second properties are the second properties. meopathists as representative as any in the city, we care not what definition is applied to the word representative. We do not assert they are all graduates of homeopathi colleges, for Hahnemann himself, the founder of the faith, and his illustrious folowers, Herring and Lippe, with a host of other representative homeopathists, were not graduates of homeopathic colleges, but we all use homeopathic medicines in our practice, and nothing else, and use then iomeopathically.

Dr. J. B. G. Custis replied, although he said, according to Dr. Williams, he was not eligible. He did not believe the trustees of the proposed college were able to carry out the provisions of the charter if it were granted. It would require an endownent of $100,000. He called attention to the list of incorporators, and declared that not one of them was a prominent homeopath in the city. Unless the incorporators proved their ability to teach medicine it would, he claimed, be a most dangerous thing to grant a charter. Students would be grad agted without the necessary qualifications, and the greatest harm would result. Dr. Custis claimed that the proposed college was not representative in any respect of the homeopathic school, local or national. The Commissioners premised to consider the bill. PEOPLE AND THINGS ABROAD.

BALLINGTON BOOTH'S PLAN. He Will Appeal to the Artisans of the

There was a large meeting of supporters of Ballington Booth, who lately resigned his command in the Salvation Army, last evening in Cooper Union, New York. Mr. Booth gave the following outline of his proposed religious n ovement: "Mrs. Booth and myself have not come here tonight to allude to the recent sad trouble. It is quite true we have, after mature deliberation, decided to inaugurate a new movement. Could we have avoided it, it would most assuredly have been done on our part; but recognizing that the great American people believed that we had done a work nine years for which they were gratified, and would not listen to the protest that we would retire into private life, we have concluded to stay here and work on new lives.

"Recognizing, as we did, the largest field in the world, and still further recognizing that there was room in America for one, two, aye, one hundred Salvation Armies, we have resolved to the best of our ability to win over the middle classes of the artisan community of this country. We wish no strife with the Salvation Army, no strife either literal or verbal. "I believe that the failure, so called, of the religious organizations of the present day is that they do not come down to the living places where Jesus Christ wants to e represented.

"I want to assure Mrs. Booth and those officers who have stood by me that I see in the distance a movement which tonight has received its impetus in this great gathering. I do not want anything that exists in the air but a growing control of the air but a growing control of the service of the servic the air, but a genuine consecration of our soldiers to the faith of Christ.

The Water Main Assessments. The Commissioners have transmitted to Congress, with their approval and urgent recommendation that it be immediately passed, a draft of a bill authorizing a reassessment in cases where water main taxes have been declared illegal. In a letter accompanying the bill the Commissioners, after referring to the de-cision of the District courts in the Burgdorf case, say: "Since then the Commissioners have canceled the unpaid assessments covered by the decision, but property owners who had paid their assessments have received no benefits. The amount of assessments outstanding June 4, 1895, was $210,767.95. The amount canceled by order of the court was $130,519.32, leaving a non-collectable balance of $30,248.63. It is absolutely necessary for the maintenance of the water department that these taxes should be available. It has cost the District the full amount of the assessments to lay the mains. The taxes have not been excessive. The water department, by law, must be self-sustaining. Unless these taxes The proposed bill provides for the reassessment of the taxes set aside by the court. Throughout the Rebellion He Served in Many Engagements. Rear Admiral Henry Walke died at his ome in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon. Henry Walke was born in Virginia eightyeight years ago. When quite young he was taken to Ohio, receiving his education at the Chillicothe Academy. In 1827 he became a midshipman in the navy, being assigned to the frigate Alert, under the command of Lieut, Farragut. He was present at the surrender of Vera Cruz during the Mexican war, being executive officer of the brig Vesuvius. During the war of the rebellion he commanded the gunboats Taylor and Lexington. He was at the battle of Fort Henry, in charge of the gunboat Carondelet. He was successful in getting the Carondelet past Island Number Ten on April 4, 1862. For this piece of work he was honorably mentioned. In 1862 for his bravery he was made a captain 1866, commodore, and rear admiral in 1870. One year later he retired, having the proud distinction of being the first officer to do so voluntarily to give the younger men a

There were over one hundred members present. Speeches were made by a number of well known members of the society, among them S. Pinei, Marquis Lanza of the Italian legation and Philip Guiliana. They all expressed devoted loyalty to their coun-ty, but without criticism of the present minister. Sympathy was generally ex-pressed for the widows of the Italian sol-diers slain in Abyssinia, and a collection of $150 was taken up for their benefit.

A committee, consisting of Marquis Lanza, S. Pinci, A. Ghiselli, F. Sanfellipo, F. S. Gulli, Philip Guiliani, D. Christofoni, Patrici Antonio, A. De Vincenti and A. A. Massino was appointed to solicit from Italians living here subscriptions for the benefit of the families thus left destitute.

The Spanish Minister Takes Issue With Them.

He Declares That Their Authorities for Their Declarations Were Blased in Favor of Cuba

The Spanish minister, Senor Dupuy de Lome, has made public an extended communication, in which he undertakes to refute the statements made by Senator Snerman in his speech of February 28, in which he described the alleged horrors and cruelties perpetrated by Gen. Weyler in the war of 1872. Senator Sherman attributed the stories to a book written by a Spaniard named Enrique Donderic, who was so herror-stricken by the high crimes he saw committed in Cuba that he fled to this country and published his manuscript. Senor de Lome says he has made an investigation about the book, a small pamphlet of forty-three pages, printed in 1876, which describes many horrors attributed both to the Spaniards and to the rebels.

and he affirms that it does not mention Gen. Weyler's name a single time.

Senor de Lome also takes issue with Senator Morgan, who, on February 24. quoted the American Cyclopedia in support of his argument against the brutal system followed by Spain in the former war, and declares that the article in the American Cyclopedia was written by a strong enemy of Spain, and that the sense of a dispatch from Minister Sickles at Madrid on the subject of the number of insurgents killed and taken prisoners in battle during the former war had been distorted from the expression of a belief into an official statement. Regarding the declaration of Gen.
Weyler upon his arrival in Cuba that he proposed to exterminate gradually the small bands of bandits, Senor de Lome says that nobody can believe that Gen. Weyler by the word exterminate meant to put to death.

In conclusion Seror De Lome says:
"I cannot understand how all rules of war that have been given by all civilized rations are so criminal, so cruel and so tyrannical when they are applied to Cuba. I have before my eyes a summary of charges of inhumanity in connection with the war of the rebellion in the United States to both sides, taken from American history. I am sure that many of them are false, most of them exaggerated, some necessary and others unavoidable. But take essary and others unavoidable. But, tak-ing only as an illustration and for the sake can be collected Congress will have to sus-tain the department by an appropriation. of argument what I see in that list, I can-not understand how people who are fa-not understand how people who are fa-miliar with those necessary evils of war have been able to use such harsh, unjust and offensive language against Spain. "In an English paper of those days I read the following (pinion of the American civil war "Stripped of its trappings, it is a mere quarrel for territory. The antagonists are acting like Delawares and Pawnees. War to the knife, pushed to absolute extermination is what they have resolved on. and people breathe a language of massacre and extermination.' This charge was no more justified than the charges which are brought now against Spain. I said nothing when that language was used in the press, but I believe it is my duty, although against the conventionalities of my position, to appeal, as I have said, to the honest common sense of the American peo-ple, when those words are uttered from the Capitol of the United States.

"Nothing is now done in Cuba that has not been done and has not been deemed not been done and has not been deemed necessary in other countries when at war. It would be possible and easy for me to quote many facts not different from those which new arouse public sentiment against Spain. I will only ask persons wanting an impartial and honest opinion to read what the commanders-in-chief of the American ermies on both sides and what those of the armies of France and Germany have deemed necessary for the protection of their soldiers and the carrying out of the ion Division, No. 1, U. R. K. P., which was held at Odd Fellows' Hall for a fortnight, came to an end Saturday evening. The aggregate amount realized in the two weeks was $3,000, which is to assist knights disabled from work and knights' widows and orphans. All articles not prevently disposed of were sold at auction and bld-ding was lively. Donations from business men had been generous, and this auction was a great help in swelling the general fund. This evening at the same place the Burnt Cork Club will give an entertainment for the benefit of the same charity fund, which is to be followed by dancing, the formal ending of the fair.
